There's no substitute for experience – and few career paths provide more essential experience than service in America's military. The skills and strengths gained from military service are the same qualities that hiring managers seek in employees: Proven performance, hands-on experience, commitment to teamwork, respect for procedure and diversity, and dedication to a goal. The Volt Military Heroes Program connects America's military veterans with great jobs in corporate America, and provides our clients with the qualified talent they seek at every tier of their business.

Leveraging the Power of a Proven Workforce

Because the transition from military service to a private sector career can be a culture shift, Volt works on a variety of fronts to help veterans, military spouses, and wounded warriors find jobs where they can thrive. Spearheaded by Volt's tenured recruiting specialists and on-staff retired military officers, we participate in a broad array of veteran outreach programs to ease veteran's transitions to a civilian career, assist with job preparation, help translate their military experience into civilian equivalents, and identify job opportunities where they can excel.

By collaborating closely with our clients, the Volt Military Heroes Program provides a classic win-win scenario: exceptional job opportunities for America's military veterans and their families, and experienced employees who are ready and eager to contribute to our clients' success.
